Profile

Passionate about mobilising the full potential of individuals and teams, Graham's career spans coaching, consultancy and senior management.

With a corporate background including IBM and AT&T, some sparking highlight achievements include leading the deployment of a ground breaking pan-European infrastructure, managing explosive growth across 4 countries in one of IBM's fastest growth divisions, implementing a business re-engineering and restructuring in EMEA to support a $5bn worldwide reorganisation.

Graham's core belief is that we are all capable of exceptional achievement – but often need some close support to realise it, and to make it happen!

A fully accredited member of the European Coaching Foundation and a member of the International Association of Coaches, Graham also holds a Masters degree in Business Management Systems from Warwick Business School.
